"The Goddess"

by Gouverneur Morris and Charles W. Goddard

The triumph of Anita Stewart and "The Goddess" is the marvel of the moving picture age.

Marvellous in her emotional range, Anita Stewart makes Celestia a maiden inspired and a true daughter of Eve at the same time.

Anita Stewart not only plays the part—she LIVES Celestia. She IS Celestia.

Read the compelling, fascinating serial story of "The Goddess" now in the Boston American, today and every evening. Then see the superb film itself. For fuller details see Page 6.

HOSPITAL GIRL HAD '1 BEER'

WHITNEY BANQUET ALA TURK

Further details of that "Oriental champagne party," when the table cloth and viands were spread on the floor and Theodore D. Whitney, the Boston law merchant, and his guests squatted, Turk fashion, cropped out today at the Whitney will continue before Judge Fox and a jury in the Suffolk Superior Court.

William E. Hingston, handwriting expert, introduced by the widow, who seeks to break the $230,000 will, testified that he found interlineations in the document on file at the Suffolk Registry and corrections "in different ink." Most notable was the adorning of the word "widow" on one page.

Mrs. Della M. Hurley of No. 728 East Sixth street, South Boston, formerly employed as maid by Mrs. Amy H. Barker, told in a deposition of frequent visits Mr. Whitney made to Mrs. Barker's Brookline home and to her bungalow at Hampton Beach. She said Whitney brought Mrs. Barker lobster, candy and flowers, gave her a ring with three pearls and linen gifts.

"She wanted on him like a sweetheart," testified Mrs. Hurley. "They acted like sweethearts. She called him 'Theo' and he called her 'Dippy Dear'." They sat on the sofa and in the hammock together.

Mrs. Emma T. Morse was the witness when former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, counsel for the widow, got to give details of the banquet, about which previous witnesses had hinted.

Q—Miss Morse, did you live in Melrose? A—I did, at No. 27 Wyomington street, for twenty-five years.

Q—Did Mrs. Strader, sister of Mrs. Barker (Mr. Whitney referred to Mrs. Barker as his "dear friend"), live in the same house? A—She did.

Q—Do you recall an entertainment at Mrs. Strader's when the table cloth was spread on the floor? A—I do.

Q—Was Mr. Whitney there? A—Yes, in the afternoon.

Q—Was champagne served? A—It was.

Attorney Mayberry in cross-examination.

Q—How long ago was that affair? A—Fifteen years ago. I considered it a sort of boy's frolic.

Q—Did somebody call on you for an interview about that affair? A—Yes, Mr. Jackson.

Ernest Jackson was told to stand in the rear of the courtroom and was identified by the witness.

Q—Did anybody else come to see you about the matter? A—Yes, Mrs. Whitney called on me and referred to Mr. Jackson's interview.

Mr. O'Connell swore five new wit-

NEBRASKAN FURIOUS INQUIRY BY GERMANY AIRSHIPS

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Counsellor Lansing of the State Department today announced that Ambassador Gerard had reported from Berlin that the German Admiralty had promised to investigate the torpedoing of the American ship Nebraska off Fastnet Rock. The German Admiralty has as yet no report on this incident from any submarine commander.

President Wilson's note to Germany may be sent tonight, but probably will be held until tomorrow. This became known following the President's return to the White House from his Sunday trip to the country.

The delay is now well understood to be due to the desire to employ exact phrases to express the views of this country, as there have been several important developments since it was announced a week ago that an uncompromising note would be forwarded within forty-eight hours.

The belief grows stronger that if the diplomatic note is left even half an hour open to Germany, which will have the advantage of it to make a friendly reply, it will not affect the final outcome.

MAY MAKE SACRIFICES.
The reporter of increased is expected to make an argument and give her views on international law and obligations to America. In those of President Wilson. The conviction is becoming rooted in the minds of American diplomats and some in the military circles.

MANY LOVE NOTES ARE FOUND IN ROOMS OF THE NEWTON SLAYER

Love affairs with many girls are expected to be revealed when Charles E. Warren of Allston is placed on trial charged with the murder of Walter G. Green, employer of his former sweetheart, Miss Ruby H. Stewart, who lives at the Newton hospital, suffering from a bullet wound inflicted by Warren.

Search of the previous indictment in Allston revealed many letters in the handwriting of different names, and through these, letters the police expect to disclose the full details of Warren's past life.

Warren was arraigned in the police court in Newton today on a charge of murder. The police asked for a continuance until next Monday. The Grand Jury will not act on his case in the meantime.

JEALOUSY AS MOTIVE.
Jealousy appears to be the motive for the shooting that altered Allston when Warren first came home to and about Green's Newton-Corcoran restaurant. It is now said that Warren was jealous of Green, who had been a chauffeur for Charles E. Morse of Salem street, Chestnut Hill, had been playing marked attention to Miss Stewart.

Policemen believe that Warren was the instigator of the shooting, and it is expected that the news of his meeting case to Warren and his friends.

RUBY STEWART, GIRL WOUNDED IN NEWTON TRAGEDY

First published photograph of girl, for love of whom Charles E. Warren became slayer.

It is known that she was keeping steady company with Warren at any time. Miss Stewart denied at the hospital that Ruby threw any money for her fellow who has an automobile. The automobile in question, Warren tried to make his escape from this point, having arrived safely at Allen Green's restaurant where Miss Stewart worked last Thursday night. He was refused to receive the automobile. It is believed he planned the shooting of Saturday.

Warren, the dead restaurant keeper, was well known in Newton and in Charlestown, where he formerly kept a restaurant for many years at No. 225 Main street. His restaurant was the headquarters of the "225 Club" of Charlestown. His selection from the old club was the funeral.

SAID RUBY JETTED HOME.
Mrs. Joseph Abbott, landlady with whom Warren lived, declared that Ruby threw money for her fellow who has an automobile. The automobile in question, Warren tried to make his escape from this point, having arrived safely at Allen Green's restaurant where Miss Stewart worked last Thursday night. He was refused to receive the automobile. It is believed he planned the shooting of Saturday.

GREAT ARTILLERY BATTLE IN FRANCE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRILL, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, June 7.—The great artillery duel, which is a part of the battle of the Marne, has been going on since the first of June, and is the most terrible in the history of the war.

The French war office in an official communique today described the artillery engagement as one of the "most violent" in the history of the war.

RUSSIANS HOLD DNEISTER LINE

By FRANK LAYBELL MURRAY, Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PITTSBURGH, June 7.—While the Austro-German army of General von Linsingen is hammering away at the Russian right wing along the Dneister line in Galicia, the forces making up the Russian center are fighting desperately to get into position to strike a flank blow against the troops of General von Mackensen's main army.

North of the Stryp river, particularly in the region of Husiatyn, the Austro-German forces have begun a heavy bombardment of the Russian lines preparatory to an attempt to cross the Dneister. The Russians hold strong positions along the Dneister, with artillery mounted upon the heights commanding the river crossing.

The German attacking forces appear to be making headway in the region of Husiatyn. The Germans have succeeded in heavy artillery along the railway running eastward from Stryp, and these guns are now bombarding the Russian lines. A regrouping of the Russian forces south of Stryp-Tymlenka front is in progress.

PRESIDENT HILL OF THE RETAIL GROCERS FOR BETTER STREETS

Frank F. Hill, president of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, today takes up the cudgels for better streets for Boston.

President Hill vigorously supports the AMERICAN'S better street campaign and urges immediate action.

By FRANK F. HILL.
Boston streets are bad, very bad. I had this fact brought home very strikingly on a trip through the West from which I have just returned.

I visited many cities, among them cities large and small in the Middle West, Far West and on the Pacific Coast. Also in Canada. Some of these were Chicago, San Francisco, Pasadena, San Diego, Portland, Seattle, Victoria and Vancouver, Toronto, Denver and so on.

WORST STREETS HERE.
In all of these I covered miles of streets in an auto.

I came home with the knowledge that Boston has far worse streets than any city I visited. The streets of our city are worse than those of any city I ever saw. Our streets should be the best and instead they are the worst.

Here is the Summer right upon us, and our deplorable streets are still with us. This is the season when thousands of tourists will visit Boston to see all that Boston has to offer. They will see the city they have read so much about. They will see beautiful colors, for Boston has them, as few other cities have. But they will also see our streets. They will not only see them, but they will have the fearful experience of riding over them.

They will be forced to contrast the streets here with the streets in their home cities, and the contrast will not be to Boston's advantage.

If the streets remain in their present state, they will work great harm to Boston's reputation. These tourists will tell about what they saw when they leave us. I want to see the streets put into the very best condition possible, so that the strangers that come can carry away only a wholly good impression of our city.

BEST STREETS POSSIBLE.

Boston's civic pride demands the best streets possible. Instead of having the worst streets, we should have the very best streets. All Bostonians with whom I have talked streets take the same attitude. I guess the sentiment is pretty general.

Boston demands better streets. Boston ought to get them. These that have the power to make the city street improvements should take immediate action. Nothing else will do. We have had enough delays. Let the beginning come at the earliest moment possible.

There are so many holes and rough places generally in our streets that motorists lose all pleasure in riding over them. These streets are dangerous in many cases.

Let any one ride over these streets, and if he doubted the wisdom of immediate action before, his ride will bring a change of mind. He will be convinced that Boston needs better streets and needs them in the worst way now.

All the commuters I have heard among members of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association have along this same line. These had streets result in an added cost to us of maintaining our rolling stock. Only the other day one of my wagons broke a spring in going over one of the holes in the streets.

Our streets should be put into at least a halfway good condition. The AMERICAN should be made possible. At present they are in an impossible state. In their history, possibly never.

The AMERICAN is right in urging immediate action. That is just what we need. Something should be done at once.

MRS. THACHER F. SWEAT, JR., who jilted her fiancé and wed on vacation.

Jilts Fiance and Weds on Vacation

Miss Mabel H. Schlesinger of No. 26 Upland road, Cambridge, who became Mrs. Thacher F. Sweat, Jr., by her marriage in New York a few days ago, is so far from home in the West, while Harry D. Burnham, a Cambridge and Providence automobile agent to whom the girl was engaged, is trying to figure out just what happened.

A week ago the girl planned to leave for a vacation in the West, going by way of New York. Burnham accompanied her as far as Providence, to New York City, now appears. Miss Schlesinger met an aunt, and also met Sweat, and a friend he had brought from Chicago to be his best man. Friends of the girl here have received letters saying she is now Mrs. Sweat. She is at any rate, and she and Burnham were engaged at the time she left home.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO HELP PROBE

President Howard Eliot, of the New Haven road, in a statement issued for publication today, announces that the road will cooperate with the Public Service Commission in every way in order that the investigation called for by the new legislation may be completed this Autumn.

The passage of these bills, reads the statement, "gives the company the legal right to submit to its stockholders some plan for financing the present Boston road and for obtaining money for future needs if the business conditions justify."

The Validation Act calls for an investigation of the company is anxious to have that work proceed rapidly. It hopes that the Public Service Commission can complete its investigation in every way. The company is ready at any time to submit all information and facts in its possession about the Commission's First Contract of July 1, 1912. LITTLE TOWN OF MOOSUP ASTIR OVER REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF INHABITANT Woman Helpless for Years From Rheumatism Devised Ropes Rigged From Ceiling to Lift Her From Bed.

The little town of Moosup, Conn., situated a few miles from Providence, is all a-glow over what they consider almost a miracle in the recovery of one of their town's people, Mrs. Fanny A. Cheney.

Hearing of the story, several people from Boston journeyed to the village to get the facts direct. There was no difficulty in finding Mrs. Cheney's home, as it was pointed out immediately on inquiry.

She had been ailing for some fifty odd years, and at the door, and when asked for Mrs. Cheney smilingly invited us in and good-naturedly informed us that she was Mrs. Cheney. "So you came to see me about my case," everyone in Moosup is talking about it, and I am not surprised, for I have been an invalid a long time.

"I suffered from rheumatism of the joints for five years. I believe every joint in my body was affected. My hands, wrists, knees, feet were swollen from a chafy disease and I was helpless. Physicians wanted to operate on me and try to remove the deposit. My legs were drawn up so that they could not be straightened, and to have anyone lift me from the bed was agony unbearable. For one year I did not leave the bed without assistance. How helpless I was and what I suffered only God and myself know.

"The rector of St. Alban's Church in Danvers knows my condition, for he called on me while I was confined to bed for the purpose of giving me communion. When I started on Varney's I was in bed and continually getting worse, and after a year I did not see much improvement except that my stomach was better and my strength began to return.

"From an absolutely helpless cripple who could only turn in bed with the aid of a rope rigged about as head, I am now walking about as you see me, without the aid of a crutch or cane. From day to day I can see I am growing better. I thank God for the knowledge that brought Varney's to me and I have often prayed that Mr. Varney might be long spared for a continuance in the work that he is doing for sufferers.

"There is hardly a person in this section who does not know about my condition, and I am glad you called, for it may be the means of helping other sufferers. In fact I am always glad to hear from any rheumatic sufferers and let them know I realized my health. My address is Post Office Box 134, Moosup, Conn. I have loaned my wheel chair, crutches, pulley and shoes to Varney's to add to the collection in Boston."

Hundreds of rheumatic sufferers have recovered their health through Varney's after ordinary remedies have failed. Varney's does not contain salicylates, iodides, colchicum or the usual drugs so often given, but is composed of roots, herbs and plants. No element can afford to ignore Varney's. A visit to this hotel will convince the most skeptical.

A registered physician may be requested for a charge at the Boston office, 140 Boylston St., and to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatism.

HEAR HEAVY FIGHTING OFF GOTHARD

PETROGRAD, June 7.—Naval activity is developing in the Baltic sea on a large scale, a Russian transport and three German steamships having been sunk.

According to a German official statement, the Russian aircraft carrier Amur was sunk by a German submarine near a Baltic port on June 5.

The Amur built in 1905 is taken as a monitor. She was of 2,500 tons, 120 feet long with a speed of 12 knots. Her armament was 4 inch guns and two 15 pounders.

The following statement on the Baltic operations was given out by the Ministry of Marine today:

A squadron approached the entrance to the Gulf of Riga on Thursday, but withdrew upon receiving our fleet. Later the enemy sent out hydrocaucers which attacked our ships. These attacks were without result, the projectiles missing their mark.

The enemy reported his attacks on Friday, but these were frustrated by our submarines. At the same time in the Baltic sea our Russian fleet was attacked by the German submarines and sunk. Thirty-two men being saved.

"Reports dated Sunday show that three enemy steamships were sunk by mines placed in the route of their journey and by attacks of our submarines."

GERMANS SEEKING TO CUT OFF THE COURLAND COAST

PARIS, June 7.—The operations of the German fleet at the head of the Gulf of Riga are believed to have an objective both the complete isolation of the Courland coast from Scandinavian ports and the seizure of Russian landing places and the seizure of German troops upon the banks of the Baltic coast.

The Courland coast projects into the Baltic in the form of a peninsula. On the west coast is the important port of Liepaja, which is the main port of Courland. It is the port of the Gulf of Riga. This port is one of the most important in the Baltic. It is the port of the Gulf of Riga. It is the port of the Gulf of Riga.

ORIENTAL PARTY IN WHITNEY CASE

Several today, among the most important being William H. H. Whitney, handwriting expert, who will submit alleged evidence to the jury.

Attorney O'Connell, Mr. Whitney did you see as my request to the Probate Registry to inspect the will of Theodore H. Whitney? A—No.

Q—What does that mean? A—I was satisfied that the signature of Mr. Whitney is genuine.

Q—What about the fact that the will was in two separate sections and I believe it had been corrected after it had been originally executed?

Q—From whom did you get permission to inspect the will? A—From the attorney of the estate.

Q—What about your inspection of the will? A—I found that the will was in two parts and that the first part was written by the testator and the second part was written by a third person.

German 'Hymn of Lusitania' Gives Warning

By EDITH WHARTON.

PARIS, June 7.—(Translated from the German.)

The swift sea sucks her death agony under

As the great ship reels and leaps

Crammed with all her life and her

Like a straw on the tide she is

A warning note, though she larks

And fearful for lives as some

A warning, and one of the rare

Not pined with her rustling har-

Now the ship has gone back their

And for each of her gray coats

Would have sunk ten ships with

Yes, ten such ships are a pity

For our kind life in our fighting

Let Zepherus ponder the crimson

"Torpedoes, strike! And hurrah for the next."

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN.

Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 7.—A reverse for the land forces of the Anglo-French allies in the south-western zone of the Gallipoli peninsula is reported in the following official statement given out by the War Office today:

"Submarine fighting near Sedd-i-Buhir has terminated successfully for us. Our counter-attacks, delivered by our right wing, drove the enemy back into his old position, with heavy loss. The retirement of the allies took place in disorder."

LONDON, June 7.—Impassioned gains have been made by the allied forces in the attack on the Dardanelles, as a result of which two lines of Turkish trenches have been taken along a front of nearly three miles.

The general infantry attack resulting in this success was made in the southern area of the Gallipoli Peninsula by order of General Sir Ian Hamilton, aided by all the guns of the allied fleet.

The territorial division took three lines of trenches, but were obliged to give up one of these, as the enemy had been captured. The naval force was also obliged to give up some of its positions.

The French division took for the fourth time the deadly position known as the Little Trench, but were driven out by Turkish counter-attacks.

On the extreme right the French took a strong line of trenches which were held by the British. The British were also obliged to give up some of their positions.

Several hundred Turkish prisoners were taken, including a number of German sailors.

In Asiatic Turkey the British have captured Amara, taking over 2,000 prisoners. (Boston even, a gunboat, barges and steamers. The pursuit of the British Turkey coast.)

RIOT ON ST. LOUIS OVER LUSITANIA

By International News Service.
NEW YORK, June 7.—When the American liner St. Louis arrived in port today she brought word of a riot which had been precipitated when one of the passengers attempted to defend the sinking of the Lusitania as a legitimate act of war. Morris Weingarten was the passenger who started the argument, and the ship was soon a scene of confusion and riot. The St. Louis was crowded with about 1,000 passengers, and the riot was a serious one. The ship was crowded with about 1,000 passengers, and the riot was a serious one. Robert Morris — "Financier of the Revolution"
HAS BEEN SAID the three very great men of our War for Independence were Washington, Franklin and Morris. In the history of mankind no man ever had a more arduous commission than did Morris in financing the armies of Washington. The credit of the nation was practically valueless, and time after time it was the personal credit of Morris which brought forth the money. The financial means raised from his own private resources made the victory at Trenton possible. When Washington proposed the capture of Lord Cornwallis and his entire army, it was from Morris, the patriot and private citizen, and not from the treasury of the Confederate States from which the money came. Thus Washington's last great victory was made possible, and the long and bloody struggle for National Independence brought to an end. Morris was the first to suggest our present system of National banks—the best banking system that any nation has ever known. He was the first American to send a ship forth flying the Stars and Stripes. Like Franklin he signed both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. He was very hospitable, and whenever Washington visited Philadelphia he was the guest of Morris. He was ever a moderate user of light wines and barley beers, and opposed Prohibition Laws, which make the many suffer for the faults of the few. For 87 years Anheuser-Busch have been brewing the kind of honest barley-malt and Sauter beer which the wisdom of Morris knew made for real temperance. To-day at the home of BUDWEISER, 7700 people are daily required to meet the natural public demand. BUDWEISER'S ever-increasing popularity comes from quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles.

CHARLIE WHITE PICKED TO WIN

By JACK CONWAY.

BY WHITE is one of the world's greatest lightweight fighters. He is a 132-pounder in the world who can be as hard as the Chicago favorite. His wonderful ring record proves my statement to be correct.

White can punch hard enough to knock out the average lightweight,

but he does not possess enough strength to stop Charlie Thomas,

the French lightweight and featherweight champion. Thomas is a second rounder and will take everything that White has to offer without resisting a single foot. And what is more he will be forcing the fighting

when the bell sounds for the contest. The fight will be in the final round in his tussle with

Let Us Have Peace With Honor, If That Be Possible

Fortunately, the President has not "rushed" a hasty and heated reply to the German note, as the news from Washington at first implied that he would do. He has evidently taken due and proper time to consider the question of the exact rights of the United States in this situation and the exact facts upon which those rights are based.

It is fortunate if the President has taken time to prepare this second note of the United States with care, thoroughness and with exact knowledge and definition of the rights of this country under international law, since the present points in dispute between the United States and Germany are plainly due to the evident haste and impulsiveness with which the first note to Germany was prepared.

The position which the United States can take and should take is absolutely simple and absolutely sound.

THIS COUNTRY SHOULD STAND FIRMLY FOR ITS RIGHTS. ALL ITS RIGHTS AND NOTHING BUT ITS RIGHTS.

In our first note to Germany we demanded many things which we had every right to demand, but we sought to intrude some things which were beyond our rights either of ex-action or suggestion.

In our second note we should limit our demands to our well-defined and unquestionable rights under international law, and insist with increased force and firmness upon the discussion and recognition of those demands, and none other.

We must not again weaken our cause or complicate a delicate situation by the intrusion of any demand or suggestion not pertinent and imperative.

In our first note we demanded, or, at least, urged, that Germany suspend her submarine warfare upon the commerce of the allies. Every intelligent and informed individual in the United States knows that we had no right to make this demand, and no right to assume that Germany would concede it.

To ask that Germany refrain from submarine warfare is to ask that she refrain from any kind of sea warfare, as she has not the force above seas to contend for a moment against the four great navies, combined, of the allies.

To ask that Germany refrain from using against the commerce of her enemies her one available weapon of sea warfare is to ask that Germany hold the commerce of the allies immune from attack, while the allies are allowed to destroy her commerce and stop the importation of her absolute necessities without interference.

Of course, such a demand could not be conceded by Germany, and it is an indictment for the maintenance of peace that Germany has replied to this extreme requirement in so moderate and friendly a spirit.

It is admittedly embarrassing for the United States to be compelled to abandon any part of its original position, but there are compensations for such a modification of our position, both in the way of advantage and of abstract justice.

Having retired from that part of our position which is unwise, unjust and untenable, and thus freed ourselves from the complications and embarrassments which such a position involves, we can make our demands for the consideration of our unquestioned and unquestionable rights with complete fairness and uncompromising firmness.

We cannot require that German submarines shall cease to attack British ships or French ships or Italian ships, but we can demand and stand ready to enforce the demand that German submarines cease to attack American ships. A single instance of attack upon an American ship might be considered a mistake, as Germany has alleged, and might be open to excuse as such. For one or two isolated instances, we might accept Germany's apologies and amend.

But a series of attacks upon American ships, made in the face of proper protest and warning, cannot be considered a mistake, but must be regarded as a sustained policy of injury and affront, and must, if continued, be resented as hostile depredation upon our peaceful commerce.

If the United States confine itself to its undeniable rights, it can take its stand immovably and impreguably upon those rights, and we have in the attacks made upon the Gulflight and Cushing and the Nebraska three matters of just and serious complaint against Germany.

The Lusitania was an English vessel, and not that alone; it was an English naval auxiliary. It was built upon admiralty plans, aided by government subsidy, enrolled as an auxiliary and liable for military service in time of war.

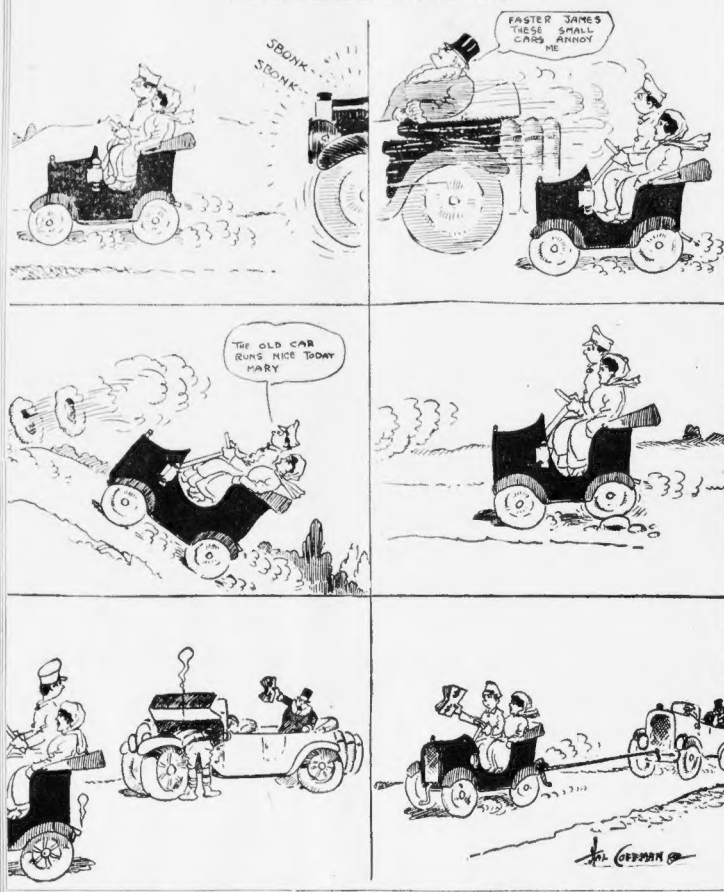

Admittedly it carried contraband, and whether it was armed or not, it was properly a spoil of war, subject to attack and destruction under the accepted rules of so-called civilized warfare.

The destruction of the Lusitania, with so many of its

AND SO IT GOES (That Is, Some of Them Do, Sometimes)

innocent, non-combatant passengers, cruel and evil an act as it was, is an indictment not of Germany's warfare alone, but of war itself, as war is now waged on land and sea. It is an indictment of the authorized and accepted rules of warfare, for readers and writers, too, should remember that the Declaration of London, which was supposed to provide for innocent passengers, was not ratified by various nations and therefore failed to become formally a part of international law.

Let us turn from the Lusitania, therefore, where our rights of interference are so ill defined and so questionable, to the instances of the Gulflight, the Cushing and the Nebraska, where our rights are clearly defined and absolutely unquestioned.

These vessels were American vessels. They were flying the American flag. They were entitled to the privileges and the free passage of neutrals. They were under the protection of this country, and such American ships and such American rights must be protected by this country, even if this protection calls for force of arms.

Explanations for such outrages will not, hereafter, answer. Apologies should no longer be accepted. Immunity for neutral ships and cargoes, inviolability for neutral rights, must be conceded and maintained both by Germany and England, by neutrals and allies alike; must be demanded and enforced by the United States or by the United States in conjunction and co-operation with other neutral powers.

If the President, in his coming rejoinder to Germany, shall place himself upon this impregnable position and shall hold himself rigidly aloof from the debatable grounds of controversy between the nations, there can be no possible answer forthcoming save complete German acquiescence to our demands.

A note thus wisely confined to the assertion of American rights alone will insure the continuance of our present peace.

We are gaining every advantage by peace; we are securing every benefit by not being involved in this murderous and devastating war; our sons are safe; our fields are fruitful; our vaults are filled with the gold sent us by the warring nations, and our factories are busy supplying European nations with their needs.

We should not end all this and plunge into this European turmoil, where our sons will be slain and our wealth exhausted, unless there be patriotic necessity for such a course.

LET US STAND FIRMLY IN DEFENCE OF OUR JUST RIGHTS, EVERY THING WE MUST MAINTAIN THEM BY FORCE OF ARMS, BUT LET US NOT PRECIPITATE THE COUNTRY INTO AN UNNECESSARY WAR BY GOING BEYOND OUR OWN RIGHTS AND DEMANDING THE PRIVILEGE OF DICTATING TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES IN MATTERS WHICH HAVE NOT YET RECEIVED THE DEFINITION AND SANCTION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Protected!

BEFORE a signal flattered, before a rifle roared
We captured all the hostile fleet with every soul on board.
For on our gallant flagship's bridge, urbane and suave and bland
Josephus Daniels promptly stood, in absolute command.
The enemy swung into range, ten vessels to our one;
A fearless officer and crew behind each twelve-inch gun.
But ere with willing hands they loosed the cannons' fiery breath
They looked at Daniels' little cap and laughed themselves to death!

WHAT need have we of battleships? What need of shot and shell,
When power to awaken mirth will serve our turn as well?
Why guard our coasts with submarines? No will to harm abides
In any foreign for the while he has to hold his sides!
Though hostile fleets bear down on us with murderous intent,
Their aim is baffled when they yield to jocular merriment.
Our best protection and defence will Daniels ever be,
The Charlie Chaplin of the wave—the Silvers of the Sea!

But He Hasn't
It was announced that Jack Johnson would appear from the decision of the referee in the Willard-Johnson debate action.

$26,000 For the Story of a Fighter

And Well Worth It to the Fathers and Mothers of Young Boys. For Willard, the Sober, White Conqueror of the Drinking Black Man Preaches in His Biography a Sermon That Should Be Put in Every Boy's Hands.

Tomorrow the Boston AMERICAN begins the publication of the story of his own life by Willard, the white boxing champion who defeated the negro Johnson.

As Willard himself announces elsewhere in this newspaper, the AMERICAN pays him $26,000 for writing this story, and for telling, not merely how he became the world's most powerful fighter who conquered the champion negro, but especially for emphasizing the fact that he is A SOBER MAN, enabled by sobriety to conquer.

If Willard, the healthy, powerful cowboy, were an ordinary fighter, brought up to brutality, sober on the day of battle and drunk between fights, his life would be uninteresting and vile, and no good newspaper would care to publish it.

Willard, a clean-living, simple-minded, Western youth, telling perfectly simply of his life as a boy and a man, and his becoming physical champion of the world, preaches a sermon on temperance that may do more for boys and young men than sermons by men more learned.

Willard says that he hopes that fathers and mothers will have their sons read in the AMERICAN what he has to say about his boyhood—how he saw a drunkard for the first time and decided not to drink—how he noticed the effect of whiskey on the Indians—how it happened; in short, that he came to be the fighting champion of the whole world, sober, in possession of his faculties, not in the least exhausted by the struggle that gave him a fortune.

The hope expressed by Willard, that fathers and mothers will have their boys read his autobiography, is repeated by the Boston AMERICAN.

Boys listen to "regular sermons" with ears at least inattentive. You might even take time to hear Billy Sunday describe the wickedness of Satan, and the beauty of the straight path.

They would admire his physical exertions, but pay little attention to his words.

But every boy will listen with open ears while you read to him, in the AMERICAN, the story of Willard, the most powerful man in the world, the healthy young giant who easily conquered the dissolute negro—THE MAN WHO IS CHAMPION BECAUSE HE IS SOBER.

It is not usual to pay, as the AMERICAN has paid, $26,000 for one written statement, by one athlete.

But in the case of Willard the money is well spent, because of the good that the story will do. It is a plain, simple narrative, telling how the most powerful man living began his life in the West, cared for by his mother, who was a widow.

The big fighter describes his contests with the young Indians, the horrible effect of whiskey upon the Indian character, AND THE WHITE MAN AS WELL.

It is a story, exciting and interesting in its absolute simplicity.

It will not count among the great literary masterpieces of the world. Some may smile at the thought that because he conquered the most powerful fighting negro, the young Western giant is paid many times as much as great writers have received for their noblest work.

Remember, that the AMERICAN publishes Willard's biography not because he is a fighter, and who conquered the world's champion, BUT IN SPITE OF THAT FACT.

Willard's story, his descriptions of early struggles, and danger, his boyish accounts of the emotion he felt when he saw the powerful negro succumb before him—his plain account of his life, will be useful to the community, a blessing to fathers and mothers, BECAUSE IT WILL AUTOMATICALLY TURN BOYS DEVOTED TO MUSCLE AND AMBITIOUS TO EXCEL IN THE DIRECTION OF SOBRIETY—AND THAT WITHOUT SOLEMN PREACHING.

Willard's autobiography begins in the AMERICAN tomorrow. Readers of the AMERICAN who have young boys in their households should see to it that they read this story of perfect physical development based upon absolute sobriety.

Revelation

By Jane McLean

OUT of the mountains fastnesses there came
A youth; we knew not what might be his name
But in his hand he bore a hollow reed,
And when we stared he gave no seeming heed
To sight about him. Down we followed him
In his strange garb, his figure stark and slim,
To where the dank, lush river grasses grow,
Where bronze-tipped cat-tails wave to and fro.
And then he played, songs with the shivering thrill
Of pain, high echoed in the reed's clear trill,
Love and a longing born of endless dreams,
Of stranger moods still unfulfilled, or gleams
Of light and shadow, dreamily portrayed.
And when one of us asked the song he played,
He smiled that strange smile through the wild refrain
And said, "Some call it love, and others pain,
But 'tis who heard the notes of grief, of strife,
Of longing, knew it for the Song of Life."
